Sie mÃ¼ssen die Leistung der Tempdb-Datenbank maximieren.

LÃ¶sung: Sie verwenden eine rechenintensive AB-Instanz und speichern die Tempdb-Datenbank im Standardspeicher.

A. Ja

B. Nein

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

For D-series, Dv2-series, and G-series VMs, the temporary drive on these VMs is SSD-based. If your workload makes heavy use of TempDB (such as temporary objects or complex joins), storing TempDB on the D drive could result in higher TempDB throughput and lower TempDB latency.

NEW QUESTION: 2

You have a Hyper-V host named Host1 that connects to a SAN by using a hardware Fibre Channel adapter.

Host1 contains two virtual machines named VM1 and VM2.

You need to provide VM1 with direct access to the SAN. VM2 must not require access to the SAN.

Which two configurations should you perform? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)

- A. On VM1, add a network adapter.
- B. On Host1, modify the Hyper-V settings.
- C. On Host1, configure a new virtual switch.
- D. On VM1, configure a Fibre Channel adapter.
- E. On Host1, configure a new Virtual Fibre Channel SAN.

Answer: D,E

Explanation:

Step 1:

D: Building a Virtual SAN

The process of setting up virtual Fibre Channel starts with building a virtual SAN. The easiest way to accomplish this is to open the Hyper-V Manager, right click on the listing for your Hyper-V server in the console tree, and then choose the Virtual SAN Manager command from the shortcut menu. Step 2:

A: Once you have created a virtual SAN, the next step in the process is to link a virtual machine to the virtual SAN. To do so, right click on the virtual machine for which you want to provide Fibre Channel connectivity and select the Settings command from the resulting shortcut menu. Next, select the Add Hardware container, as shown in the figure above, and then select the Fibre Channel Adapter option from the list of available hardware. Etc.

Note:

* Virtual Fibre Channel for Hyper-V (also referred to as Synthetic Fibre Channel) provides VM guest operating systems with direct access to a Fibre Channel SAN by using a standard World Wide Name (WWN) associated with a virtual machine
