Which three utilities can be used for managing the OCR?

- A. OCRCMD
- B. SRVCTL

- C. OCRCONFIG
- D. OCRCHECK
- E. CRSCTL
- F. OCRDUMP

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:

C: You can use crsctl commands as the root user to enable dynamic debugging for Oracle Clusterware, the Event Manager (EVM), and the clusterware subcomponents. You can also dynamically change debugging levels using crsctl commands. Debugging information remains in the Oracle Cluster Registry (OCR) for use during the next startup.

E: The Server Control (SRVCTL) utility is installed on each node by default. You can use SRVCTL to start and stop the database and instances, manage configuration information, and to move or remove instances and services. You can also use SRVCTL to add services. SRVCTL also manages configuration information.

Some SRVCTL operations store configuration information in the Oracle Cluster Registry (OCR).

F: Use the ocrconfig command to manage OCR. Using this utility you can import, export, add, delete, restore, overwrite, backup, repair, replace, move, upgrade, or downgrade OCR.
